Reminiscences of Greenwood.

BY MARK TAYLOR.

This cozy little village called the City

was the place of resort for all gatherings of importance. The two stores

and hotel furnishing ample accommodations for all who came to spend their rainy days and evenings. The first settler here was made by Israel

Elliott, a native of Cape Ann on the coast of Massachusetts. He built mills,

settled a house and moved his family

here.

I don't know the exact date but it was some years after other parts of the town were settled. The first hotel was erected by Wm. Noyes family known as Capt. Bill, a native of North

Norway. He was, I think, the eldest of a large family of boys, far famed for their giant proportions, enormous strength and good humor. Capt. Bill was a very prominent man in town, benevolent and kind to the poor. His common weight was about 550 pounds.

His laugh was like that of Davy

Crockett's sweet-beans which was said

to make the glass rattle in the windows

and shake the beech nuts from their burs. Of course he sold a great deal of the "Oh be joyful," but that was considered no crime in those days as all hotel keepers did the same. For one thing he was noted and that was keeping good roads in town. The road from Norway line to Bethel was said to be the finest in the county, all due to Capt. Bill's untiring efforts.

A large and flourishing religious society then existed here and worshipped

in the little church. They united with the one at North Norway in supporting a pastor.

It was at the hotel of Capt. Bill we alighted and met a hearty welcome

from the jolly landlord.

"Well, Capt. David," said Capt. Bill,

"what do you want for dinner? I killed

a nice lamb to-day and we'll cook half or the whole of him if you want, or

Charles caught twelve bouncing pickers, we'll have them, either or both just as you like. What say youngsters? You drive the team. What will you have?"

I told him if I had anything to say about it my voice was for fish.

"Well, just as you say, fish you said

and fish it shall be."

Turning toward the wood-shed he called for Charles in a voice loud

enough to awake the seven sleepers.

A lad some eighteen years of age appeared armed in the drilling, tall and slim with curly hair and very large eyes. Seizing a small dog by the tail

he flung him over the fence, threw an old boot at the cat, turned a somersault

and setting his straw hat well back on his head with a comical grimace inquired

what was wanting.

Historical Sketch.

Norway is situated one mile southwest of South Paris, at the terminus of the Norway Branch Railroad. It is also the terminus of the stage line from Bridgton and Harrison, also one from Stouffville, Waterford and Greenough. It was settled in 1780 when Joseph Stevens, James Stevens, Jeremiah Hobbs, Amos Hobbs and George Lessley came from the town of Gray and laid the foundation of what is now the metropolis of Oxford county. The first house was built the year following. In the spring of this year the first mill was built. That of Mr. Joseph Stevens—moved to this place. In the summer of two years there was no mill and the settlers were obliged to go to Jackson's Mill at Paris, which was but a poor opportunity for a mill.

On the 17th of October, 1787, Sarah Stevens, the daughter of Joseph Stevens, was born. She was the first child born in the place. The first male child born was a son of Joseph Stevens, born May 31st, 1788. In 1789 Capt. Henry Rust built the first saw and grist mill on the building the mill Capt. Rust employed the new settlers on his plantation, allowing them half a dollar a day towards the cost of the mill. The first mill was built in the place. The first male child born was a son of Joseph Stevens, born May 31st, 1788. In 1789 Capt. Henry Rust built the first saw and grist mill on the building the mill Capt. Rust employed the new settlers on his plantation, allowing them half a dollar a day towards the cost of the mill.

The first marriage in the place was that of Nathan Foster and Miriam Hobbs, which took place the 17th of May, 1791, the couple being united by Rev. Nathan Merrill, a Baptist clergyman. In 1794 the first school house was erected. During this year the first State tax of seven pounds, three shillings and four pence was levied on the citizens of Norway, ranging from one pound, one shilling to eleven pence.

The town was incorporated March 9th, 1797. The first person who was appointed postmaster. He remained in office about forty years, the mail at that time being brought from Portland by a mail carrier who rode on horseback with the mail bag. He came from Portland through Gray, New Gloucester, Poland and Hebron to Norway, then to Waterford, Bridgton, Norway, Standish and Gorham, then back to Portland again.

The first colored person to locate here was Benjamin Joseph, who was a full blooded West India negro from Cuba. He was here in 1800, a servant of Maj. Jonathan Cummings in 1801. The first tavern was run by Joseph Stevens in 1800.

The first brick buildings were built in 1830. Printing was first introduced in Norway in 1826 by Asa Barton, who commenced the publication of the "Oxford Observer."

The population of Norway has increased as follows: 1850, 1063; 1860, 1882; 1870, 1948; 1880, 2519. Valuation 1850, $64,486; 1860, $80,438; 1870, $94,486; 1880, $141,644.

Secret societies of the place were there being Masonic, F. O. C., K. of C., P. O. of H., Knights of the Golden Cross, Harry Rust Post No. 54 G. A. R., Norway Light Infantry, K. of G., Reform Club, etc. The town is noted for the case of fire by an engine named the "Oxford Bear."

The citizens of Norway can justly feel proud of their town hall. It was built in 1882 by the Norway Building Association, under the directions of W. H. Horne, as member of the board of directors. The hall is 60x65, with a capacity for seating 1000 with spacious galleries. The interior is finished with six sets of excellent scenery painted by a Boston artist. The hall is handsome, light, airy and finished in a most pleasing manner. The stage is arranged more after the style of a theater than any hall we were ever in. Without doubt it is the finest hall of its size in the State and is the largest of any outside of the city.

Much of the historical data of Norway is taken from David Noyes' History of Norway, published in 1880. Norway is to celebrate its centennial in 1884, at which time it is to publish a history of its one hundred years. The work is now being compiled and written by Dr. W. B. Lapham, under the supervision of a committee appointed by the town.

The following is a partial list of the manufacturers and dealers.

Andrews & Horne.

The process of extracting grease from leather was first introduced by Dr. S. Knowles, who was previously engaged in the leather business in Portland, Mass., and Lewiston, Maine. The process consists of extracting, or rather steaming the oil out of the leather, and then placing it in a barrel in which is a steam pipe. As fast as the grease is extracted it is drawn off and subjected to a cleansing process. After being subjected to the cleansing process, the leather is taken to the tannery to be used in connection with their business. Messrs. Jackson & Horne bought out the interest of Mr. Knowles, and carried on the business until last March when Mr. Andrews became a member of the firm by purchasing Mr. Jackson's interest. The firm at present extracts two or three barrels of grease daily.

A. D. True.

Mr. True was born and brought up in Norway, consequently he is well known to every introduction to the people of this place. He began business last April with his already built up a large trade in fine fancy goods, confectionery, cigars, fruit, spices, etc. One feature of his business from the bakery every day, etc., fresh articles, such as soups, perfumery, etc. His patrons can depend on getting their money's worth every time they purchase anything at this store.

Mrs. A. B. Chase.

Mrs. Chase has been nearly twenty years experience in this business, even of which she has been located in Norway. She has the largest stock in town of all the largest in the county, having a full and complete line of hats, bonnets, feathers, etc. Having in her cellar a short notice, most fashionable milliners in the State, she feels confident of giving perfect satisfaction to all who patronize her. She very readily answers in her line we suggest they call and examine her stock before purchasing elsewhere.

W. S. Abbott.

Cigars, Confectionery, etc. Mr. Abbott began business here about eleven years ago. Three years ago he rented the store until about a year ago when he resumed business in the place where he has a fine and select stock of cigars, tobacco, pipes, confectionery, fruits of all kinds in their season, jellies, sardines, nuts, canned goods of every description. He has during his residence here established a large and increasing trade in the above named goods. Persons desiring the same should patronize Mr. Abbott.

C. B. Cummings.

Manufacturer of Toys, Meats, Boxes, etc. Mr. Cummings was born in Norway in 1835. His early life was spent upon a farm. In 1861 he started into the furniture business, continuing until he sold out to his son in 1880. At present he is interested in a saw and stove mill. The business was first introduced in Norway by a man named John Smith, who made of birch, oak and poplar. The first sawed into "boards" four feet long, then sawed into staves. This business was first introduced in Norway by a man named John Smith, who made of birch, oak and poplar. The first sawed into "boards" four feet long, then sawed into staves.

Thomas A. Fitch.

Mr. Fitch is at home at present. Mr. Welch has taken music lessons of Frank Collins for the past year and has made excellent progress. Among the many good speakers at the Convention were Mr. M. L. Lombard, Mr. Lombard has done much to keep up the temperance meetings here.

Denmark.

Willard Whitman started for California recently and is expected to stop a number of years if he likes. Newell Barton has lately moved from Lynn Mass., where he has been living for the last eight years, to his farm in this town.

North Humphord.

Brain has arrived; Johnnie Silver saw one after the other one day last week. J. H. Hutchins and P. O. Howard have been peeling their poplar when they had her the rivet bank. They are going to cutting and planing in the woods the 9th, having a contract for 300 cords for next year.

Swedish.

The warm weather of late has made a change in the looks of grass and corn. The potatoes are now in fine condition and stand nearly four inches high. Grain is looking nicely.

Swedish.

The potato beetle has made its appearance again and we shall be after it with the same vigor as last year. The first of the season was seen on Saturday. The first of the season was seen on Saturday.

Swedish.

Mr. Baker Thurston and brother came near having a smash up a short time since. The horse was running on the road and the carriage was overturned. The horse was running on the road and the carriage was overturned.

Swedish.

The Universalist Sunday School will observe Children's Sunday June 22, by appropriate exercises.

Swedish.

Mr. Durnham began business here in 1844. During his forty years experience he has been located in nearly all the principal cities of the Atlantic coast. In 1841 he went to Cuba. From him we obtained the following interesting facts concerning photography.

Swedish.

The process of retouching of negatives originated in Berlin, Germany, in 1840. The process consists of smoothing the plates, so to leave the pictures free from freckles, pimples, wrinkles, etc., that otherwise would appear. The process was first introduced by Dr. S. Knowles, who was previously engaged in the leather business in Portland, Mass., and Lewiston, Maine.
